EVAN RATED BEST MECHANIC

Chris Georgakopoulos

HARD work and persistence has led Evan Dunne to win the NSW Automotive Training Board school-based apprentice of the year award.

The Production Automotive apprentice mechanic was acknowledged recently in front of a big crowd at the Royal Automotive Club at Circular Quay.

Mr Dunne, 18, of Cambridge Park, said he was excited to be awarded.

"It was great to receive the award as I've been putting in the effort to be recognised and am happy it paid off," he said.

"It's been good working for my employers as they are always there to point me in the right direction when needed and allow me to try different things."

Mr Dunne was previously named the school-based apprentice of the year for the western Sydney region.

"It shows that if you apply yourself properly and do your best anything can happen," he said.
